MISSOULA--

University of Montana swimmers completed their season last week at the NCWSA Regional meet in Eugene, Oregon.

Head coach Fred Stetson was happy with his swimmer's performance. "The girls did real well," he said.

Sophomore, Mary Moberly did a fine job for Montana by placing sixth in 200-backstroke, seventh in 50- and 100-backstroke, and eighth in 100- and 200-individual medley.

Also helping the Grizzly effort was Tracy McLean. She finished 10th in 50- and 100-freestyle, 12th in 50-yard butterfly, and 18th in 200-butterfly.

Kathy Archer, a freshman from Bozeman, placed 15th in 200-yard freestyle.

Montana's relay teams finished 13th and 15th in the 200- and 100-yard medley, diver, Stacey Turek took eighth in one-meter and three-meter diving to help UM to a 12th place finish overall.

Stetson is already excited about next season. "We're sending out letters of intent next week and we hope to get some good recruits for next year," he said. Although it could take longer, Stetson hopes to build a strong Montana team over the next two or three years.
